PRIMO THE FALMOUTH PICK

By Ashley Iveson, PA

The decision to sidestep Royal Ascot can pay dividends for Primo Bacio in the Tattersalls Falmouth Stakes at Newmarket. The daughter of Awtaad was a big eyecatcher when fourth behind Alcohol Free on her first start of the campaign at Newbury, when she was a widely unconsidered 100-1 shot. Ed Walker's filly proved there was no fluke about that promising performance at York a month later, however, as she ran out a thoroughly impressive winner of a Listed contest in which hot favourite Snow Lantern was back in third. Primo Bacio was set to take on both Alcohol Free and Snow Lantern again in last month's Coronation Stakes, but with rain turning conditions heavy, Walker decided against it. Alcohol Free and Snow Lantern filled out the first two places at Ascot and are once again in opposition on the July Course. But it is only three weeks since that tussle in the mud and Primo Bacio's superior freshness could prove key. The main supporting race is the Duchess of Cambridge Stakes, which stages a rematch between the first three home from the Albany at the Royal meeting. On that occasion it was Andrew Balding's Sandrine who came out on top, with Ralph Beckett's Hello You best of the rest in second and the George Boughey-trained Oscula third. The latter, who only has a couple of lengths to find, had previously run out an impressive winner of the Woodcote Stakes at Epsom. Returning to a sounder surface, she is narrowly fancied to turn the tables. Peter The Great looks sure to go well in the #75,000 bet365 Handicap. John and Thady Gosden's youngster has won two of his three starts to date - showing a liking for Newmarket by scoring first on the Rowley Mile and most recently over this course and distance. The handicapper did not touch his mark of 92 following that latest triumph, which could prove very generous. Dandalla is fancied to scoop Group Three honours in the William Hill Summer Stakes at York. Karl Burke's filly looked destined for the top after a brilliant victory in the Albany Stakes last summer, before narrowly beating Fev Rover in the Duchess of Cambridge. However, she disappointed on her final juvenile start in the Cheveley Park at Newmarket and her first two starts of the current campaign were also a little underwhelming. However, a fourth placed finish in the Commonwealth Cup on her latest appearance was a big step in the right direction and she can build on that by getting back on the winning trail. Bond Power can make it third time lucky in the William Hill Pick-Your-Places Irish Stallion Farms EBF Novice Stakes. Trainer Bryan Smart has unearthed a couple of high-class juveniles this year and this son of War Command looks a winner waiting to happen judged on his first two attempts. A runner-up finish at Carlisle on debut was following by a third place here last month. That form looks red hot, with both the winner Bosh and the second Gis A Sub scoring since. Bond Power is a confident selection on his return to the Knavesmire. Ascot punters should rely upon Alerta Roja in the Biowavego 100% Drug Free Pain Relief Handicap. The daughter of Golden Horn has appeared much improved since being stepped up in trip and is expected to complete her hat-trick following triumphs at Salisbury and Yarmouth in June.
