This season's Sky Bet Sunday Series kicks off at Musselburgh and Karl Burke could have a good day, led by Tokyo Bay. The four-year-old is having his first outing since a wind operation in the Sky Bet Extra Places Handicap and it is not difficult to forgive him his last outing at Ripon on heavy ground when he was almost pulled up. That was his first run over two miles and it was in testing ground, but as he had won at the same track over a mile and a half when the mud was flying earlier in the season, conditions were expected to suit. However, he never gave himself a chance by running too keen and his race was over early in the straight. His win at Ripon worked out though, with the second winning next time and the third going on to win three, while the fourth, fifth, seventh and 10th all hit the target too. Tokyo Bay ran in the Sheikh Mohammed Obaid colours last term but now sports the silks of Burke's wife Elaine, which could be a good sign. Another of Burke's worth noting is Arbitration in the Sky Bet Build A Bet Handicap. He ran three times last season, finishing fifth in them all, yet there was plenty to like about his final outing. The four who finished in front of him were from some of the biggest Newmarket yards, suggesting the Doncaster maiden in September was a hot affair. Arbitration was sent off at 125-1, so not much was expected yet he was still in front a furlong out and when it was obvious he would not be winning, Jason Hart allowed him to coast home. A mark of 79 hardly means he is thrown in but he could be decent. Burke's Clear Force will have plenty of followers in the Sky Bet Club British EBF Novice Stakes given how well he does in such races, but preference is for Adrian Keatley's Star Material. Keatley has proved adept with juveniles, with Symbol Of Strength winning the Sirenia Stakes and the year before that Ballymount Boy was second in the Richmond. Star Material looks an early type given his dam is an unraced sister to Ardad, who has produced many speedy juveniles. His sire Starman has already had a winner from just three runners in his first season. Jim Goldie tends to target races like the Sky Bet Acca Freeze Handicap so Eternal Sunshine is of interest. She began last season rated just 55 but ended it on 73, so this campaign might not be as easy. However, she was entitled to need her first run back last week, she has been dropped another 11lb and Paul Mulrennan is back on board. It is no surprise to see James Owen send Jackpot Cash back over the smaller obstacles for the Bet At racingtv.com Novices' Handicap Hurdle at Stratford. He won over fences at Sedgefield last time out but only just, off a lower mark than over hurdles, because his jumping leaves plenty to be desired. On his last run over hurdles he was a well-beaten third after travelling well for much of the race and the fact he is out again relatively quickly suggests he remains in rude health. Fergal O'Brien's Magical Annie fell at the last when a 1-16 favourite at Catterick last time out. She was going to win easily though and should do so with a clear round in the Howley Energy & Water Ltd Mares' Handicap Hurdle.
