NOM BETTER THAN THIS AT LEICESTER

By Nick Robson, Press Association

A Pai De Nom should be able to defy a penalty in the Kube - Leicester's Premier Events Venue Novices' Hurdle at Leicester. Dan Skelton is dropping his five-year-old back into novice company having won a handicap at Cheltenham on his previous outing. He is rated 124 after that, but all his racing so far this season has been over two miles and five furlongs. He tries the minimum trip here on a sharp track, but the way he travelled at Cheltenham it should not be an issue. Last off the bridle, he looked like winning comfortably before a scruffy jump at the last meant it was harder work than it should have been but that form is the strongest on offer. Shotgun Rider is quite a rare runner over jumps for Classic-winning owner Phil Cunningham in the Annual Badge @leicesterraces Ideal Christmas Present `National Hunt' Maiden Hurdle. Cunningham was lucky enough to own Cockney Rebel in the early days of his involvement and has now successfully teamed up with Richard Spencer on the Flat. Shotgun Rider is trained by Nigel and Willy Twiston-Davies and cost #155,000 after winning a point-to-point in May and while the form of that is not strong, the yard is in good form despite the winners not quite flowing as yet. Hold Up La Colmine looked a different horse when winning at Windsor first time out this season. A winner over timber two seasons ago, better was expected of him last term but he failed to get involved in three races, with the best a third at Windsor. He fairly bolted up on his return to action, though, and while that was over fences, for which his mark went up 9lb, he reverts to the smaller obstacles for the Astill Planning Handicap Hurdle off just a 4lb higher mark. There was an awful lot to like about the winning debut of Milou Du Chenet at Bangor last month and he is taken to remain unbeaten in the pricedup.bet EBF Junior `National Hunt' Hurdle at Wincanton. He is carrying 7lb more than his rivals because of that win, but he was so impressive and sets a tall standard for these young horses. Given all were making their debuts it is hard to equate the form, but he travelled strongly and quickened up smartly, suggesting he was above average. Anything Sean Bowen gets on at present is worth close consideration and he already seems to have built up an unassailable lead in his quest to be champion for a second time. He does not ride that regularly with Ryan Potter so his booking for Ithaka looks interesting in the Bet With PricedUp Today Handicap Chase at Market Rasen. Sir Mark Prescott's Sunlit Sea just came up short on her handicap debut but back down at five furlongs can open her account in the Sky Bet For The Fans Nursery Handicap at Chelmsford.
