Kilwaughter can plot Cheltenham route with Newbury success

By Adam Morgan, Press Association

The staying handicap hurdlers are already plotting their way to March's Cheltenham Festival and recent Ffos Las winner Kilwaughter looks ready to book his ticket to Prestbury Park at Newbury. Trained by Philip Hobbs and Johnson White, the six-year-old was a course winner over an intermediate distance last term on his handicap bow and although slightly disappointing when favourite to follow up at Haydock in the spring, soon bounced back on his seasonal reappearance in west Wales. With many in this race chasers perhaps looking for somewhere suitable to open their pipes on this all-hurdle card, Kilwaughter is most definitely a timber merchant – and one that appears firmly on the upgrade in the Pertemps Network Handicap Hurdle. He goes well for 7lb conditional Jack Stenhouse and a win here off a mark of 130 could see connections looking ahead to the final in March. Ground conditions may not be at their optimum for the mud-loving Faivoir in the opening OLBG Conditional Jockeys' Handicap Hurdle, but the former County Hurdle winner proved last term there was still plenty of life in him when placed both here in the William Hill Hurdle and the Greatwood. Both a disappointing end to last season at Aintree and cobweb opener at Chepstow recently sees him now dropped to his lowest career mark of 124 and with conditional Dominic Lewis removing a further 10lb off his back, there is a real chance the 11-year-old will think he is running free despite being the top weight in the line-up. His trainer Dan Skelton could not have his string in any better form and with both experience and a fitness edge on his side, there is a real chance Faivoir could roll back the years in Berkshire. Merlin Allen looks the one to follow in the Csp Maiden Hurdle having finished third in an Aintree Grade Two bumper at the end of last season. The winner Forthfactor made a successful hurdles introduction at Stratford last week and it could prove a form line to keep onside in the early part of winter if Jane Williams' four-year-old follows suit as expected. One who disappointed when fancied to enhance their reputation at the Grand National meeting in April was Jeremy Scott's Princess Day, who can now serve a reminder of her potential back at the scene of her impressive bumper victory back in February. She ran as if in need of the outing when upped in distance for her Chepstow hurdling bow, but is now back down to an extended two miles at a track which should allow her to showcase the talent she has shown before. The Scott stable are yet to saddle a winner this term, which could be deemed a negative, but Princess Day has all the quality to change that in the Grahame Church Memorial Mares' Novices' Hurdle. Oakley Brown's 5lb claim could be the magic ingredient that sees Imperial Merlin return to winning ways in the Racing At The Heart Of Our Community Handicap Hurdle at Newcastle. A proven stayer who was third at Hexham recently, John and Sean Quinn's course winner is just 1lb higher than when last scoring at Wetherby in the spring and there is every chance he will soon enhance his CV. On the all-weather at Southwell, it may be worth keeping an eye on Juddmonte-owned colt Fenaroli in the AWC Season 14 Has Begun EBF Novice Stakes. Harry Charlton's youngster caught the eye when third on debut at Kempton last month, with the winner deemed good enough to contest last Saturday's Horris Hill Stakes on his next start. He is a half-brother to a US Grade One winner and it is interesting Colin Keane makes the trip to Nottinghamshire to partner. Celestial Fire can also make up for lost time at the Rolleston track, having only been seen the once so far in her career, when chasing home Norfolk runner-up El Floridita at Redcar on debut. Archie Watson's two-year-old will have the assistance of Hollie Doyle in the Make The Move To Midnite Restricted Maiden Fillies' Stakes and she could appreciate the move up to six furlongs.
