Maldini magic in store at Plumpton
By Chris Phillips, Press Association

Maldini Milano has every chance of recording a Plumpton hat-trick when he lines up for the Southern Cranes Handicap Hurdle. The Paul Nicholls-trained six-year-old won at this meeting last year and can help his Ditcheat handler edge closer to Martin Pipe as Britain's most successful National Hunt trainer. The Milan gelding kept on well to win here last November, but then finished down the field at Windsor on ground that did not suit. A return to the Sussex venue for his final run of last season saw him return to the winner's enclosure as he made it two from two at Plumpton, holding off Grand Conqueror by a head. Paddy Hanlon – son of trainer 'Shark' Hanlon – maintains the partnership, taking off a valuable 5lb. Nicholls could enjoy a stellar day out in East Sussex with Rickety Bridge fancied to complete a four-timer in the Kalm Club Handicap Chase. The seven-year-old won on his hurdling debut two and a half years ago and then failed to strike again in seven further attempts over timber, but the switch to the larger obstacle unleashed a different animal. He reeled off a summer hat-trick at Newton Abbott by a combined distance of 16 and a quarter lengths and appears to be going from strength to strength. Course and distance winner Goodwin Face can get back to winning ways for Chris Gordon in the Southern Access Platforms Handicap Hurdle The six-year-old loves it here, never being out of the top three on five previous visits, and broke his maiden at the eighth time of asking in May, coming home three and a half lengths to the good. He was raised 8lb for that win and defied that when stepping up in class and trip in June, coming home seven lengths ahead of his rivals to earn another 7lb rise. He disappointed at Cartmel, but was back to himself when only a two-length second last time out at Fontwell and off that same mark of 112 can find his way back into the winner's enclosure. Midnight Jukebox seeks to maintain his unbeaten start to life on the racecourse in the Winter Ladies Night Saturday 27th November "National Hunt" Maiden Hurdle at Southwell. The five-year-old won a point to point in March last year before switching to the care of Fergal O'Brien. He then won his one and only bumper here in February and might be a reasonable prospect for the hurdling game. Dartmouth Rose can pick up where she left off to record a fourth successive victory in the Festive Fixtures At Southwell Racecourse mares' Handicap Hurdle. A win in March was followed by a pair of victories at Fakenham and the step up to three miles will not be an issue. Crimson Road is taken to get the winning feeling back in the Midnite A Next Generation Betting App Handicap at Wolverhampton.
