FABRE'S FILLY CAN PROVE HIGH AND MIGHTY

By Nick Grant, Press Association

My Highness can strike 1000 Guineas gold for master trainer Andre Fabre at Newmarket. Undoubtedly one of the greatest purveyors of his craft, Fabre has in fact only won the fillies' Classic once, with Miss France in 2014. There are some similarities there, as Miss France was beaten in her trial, the Prix Imprudence - just as My Highness was. While her supporters may have been disappointed, Fabre was not, viewing it as he did with Miss France for what it was - a trial. Being by Ghaiyyath, the selection is only going to improve for this step up to a mile and if she handles the dip she should be coming home really strongly. The booking of Oisin Murphy - who struck for Godolphin aboard Mawj in 2023 - can only be seen as a positive, too.

Esna looks to have outstanding claims in the opener at Headquarters, the Oliver Brown Pretty Polly Stakes. Her juvenile form has a strong look to it, with an encouraging runner-up effort at Sandown first time backed up by victory over Morshdi on her return to the Esher circuit the following month. That looked a good run at the time and looks even better now after Morshdi emerged as a Derby contender in winning the Feilden Stakes. Brian Meehan's filly rounded off her year with a Group One tilt at the Prix Marcel Boussac on Arc day, performing with credit in fourth behind Aidan O'Brien's exciting and unbeaten Diamond Necklace. Her relatives have stayed well, so this 10 furlongs ought to hold no fears and she does have an Oaks entry. After recording a career-best in winning a Group Two at Paris Long champ in July, the Ed Walker-trained Qilin Queen found it all a bit much in the Yorkshire Oaks and Prix de l'Opera.

The Betfred Dahlia Stakes represents calmer waters and while she has a question or two to answer, so do her rivals, including Falakayeh, who looked spectacular in winning the Pretty Polly 12 months ago when Qilin Queen was back in third. Study Of Words is unlikely to go to the Derby but the fact he is even entered, aligned with his progressive profile, means he must be strong shortlist material for the HKJC World Pool Handicap. The Frankel colt was disappointing on his Ascot debut in early September, but shaped with significantly more promise when second on his next start at Goodwood, form that has been well advertised since by the winner Bay Of Brilliance, while the third and fourth are now rated in the mid-80s having also won since. He was extremely short odds to make it third time lucky on his final juvenile start at Newmarket and obliged in some style, readily dispatching of his three rivals and coming home with 15 lengths in hand. The Andrew Balding-trained Subsequent is the pick in the Betfred Handicap. He ran well in the Ebor last year and followed that up with victory at the Leger meeting at Doncaster. He has some nice engagements and it will be interesting to see if he has progressed again for another winter on his back.
