KNOCKANORE TO TASTE MIDLANDS

NATIONAL GLORY

By Molly Hunter, PA

Knockanore can thrive again when faced with a marathon trip in the Jenningsbet Midlands Grand National at Uttoxeter. Ryan Potter's eight-year-old had been holding his own throughout the season in a series of handicap chases over lesser distances, after which he entered uncharted territory for the Eider Chase at Newcastle. That foray into the realm of a four mile-plus trip was a steep test of the gelding's stamina, with his prior form including only runs over a maximum of three miles. It was a test he passed with flying colours when strolling to a 16-length success, proving beyond any doubt that he has a real future at the extreme end of the staying division. Naturally the handicapper has had his say and the bay's rating has risen 10lb, but he still carries far less than plenty of experienced rivals in this field and the ceiling on his ability in this type of race clearly has not been reached. On the same card, Lucinda Russell's King Of Answers can land the Jenningsbet 'National Hunt' Novices' Hurdle. The six-year-old was second to Jamie Snowden's useful Wendigo during his point-to-point career and got off the mark on his second hurdle start when winning a Newcastle maiden by 11 lengths last month. That success was a vast improvement on his debut and he looks to have more to offer still under Derek Fox at Uttoxeter. The concluding Jenningsbet Mares' Open National Hunt Flat Race can go the way of Noel Williams' Queenofthejukebox. The grey is the most experienced runner in the field, with a narrow point-to-point loss and three bumper starts on her CV already. Included in those runs is a wide-margin Wetherby success, the form from which has been upheld by the runner-up, and a fifth-placed run in the Listed mares' bumper at Market Rasen. The latter race often throws up good quality horses and the five-year-old can return to winning ways in marginally shallower waters here. At Kempton, Asta La Pasta can come good in the Virgin Bet Daily Price Boosts Novices' Limited Handicap Chase for trainer Dan Skelton. The seven-year-old has been on the up this season, progressing through handicaps and hitting the frame consistently over trips varying from two to two and a half miles. He may have been well-beaten last time when a distant second at Musselburgh, but the loss has at least paused the continual rise in his handicap mark and though he carries top weight here, Tristan Durrell's 3lb claim eases the burden and makes him the horse to beat.
