L' HOMME PRESSE CAN BE COTSWOLD HERO

By Anita Chambers, PA

L'Homme Presse can advertise his claims as Britain's leading Gold Cup hope with victory in the Betfair Cotswold Chase at Cheltenham. The race is billed as a trial for the main event in March but you have to go back more than 20 years to find the last horse to win this contest and go on to glory in the Festival blue riband. While L'Homme Presse might well find himself falling short on the big day again, having finished fourth in last year's Gold Cup, he still remains a likely winner this weekend. He won the Fleur De Lys Chase at Lingfield last January but does not have to shoulder a penalty for that, putting him a distance in front off his current mark of 163 and getting 6lb from the next best in Gentle mans game.

Venetia Williams' charge was a 12-length third in the King George but neither the going or track would have been ideal as he has shown his best with cut and usually leans to his left when jumping, neither of which would be a negative here. Constitution Hill cannot be opposed in the Unibet Hurdle, particularly in the absence of Lossiemouth, with only an unexpected mishap likely to derail his winning sequence. Those wanting any involvement will have to look at prices for the winning distance.

The argument for Crambo in the Betfair Cleeve Hurdle is less clear-cut in what appears on paper to be a match with Strong Leader. Fergal O'Brien's charge won a second Long Walk Hurdle at Ascot before Christmas, shaking off a 252-day absence to get the better of a thrilling three-way finish, with Strong Leader putting up no kind of performance in trailing home last, from which excuses emerged. Crambo failed to build on his Ascot win last year, finishing down the
