STONE COLD LOOKS A CERTAINTY AT CARLISLE

By Nick Grant, PA

Cold Sobar is an interesting recruit to fences as he starts off in the racingtv.com Novices' Handicap Chase at Carlisle. In the care of Stuart Coltherd, the seven-year-old was a point-to-point winner and dotted up in two novice hurdles at Newcastle in March and April of 2023. He was not seen again until that October, upped markedly in class for the Persian War that went to Captain Teague. That proved difficult for him and there is a chance something might have been amiss, as we have not seen him since. If he retains the undoubted ability he showed in his hurdling days and does not need this too much, he could be a cut above these. The application of a visor might do the trick for Marown in the Watch Racing TV Handicap Chase. The Nicky Richards-trained 10-year-old has proved frustrating to follow over the past 12 months, placing on several occasions without hitting the bullseye. He finished second here on his seasonal debut last month, travelling strongly before failing to stick with the reopposing Flic Ou Voyou after the final fence. Marown is significantly better off at the weights for the rematch and is fancied to turn the tables in the first-time headgear. It is over 20 years since National Hunt action took place at Windsor and its return has been roundly welcomed by the jumping fraternity. Chief among those has been Nicky Henderson and true to his word he has assembled one or two runners to travel from Seven Barrows. Leading the charge is Excello in the Fitzdares Welcomes Jumping Back @ Royal Windsor EBF 'National Hunt' Novices' Hurdle. He missed out by just a head to Western Knight at Ascot recently, on what was his first start for 256 days, during which time he underwent a wind operation. While only lightly raced since joining Henderson from France, he did land a novice chase at Ascot in December 2023 before attempting to mix it in competitive Cheltenham handicaps and there is no reason he should not win something like this over hurdles on the way to something better, be that staying hurdling or returning to fences. La Pinsonniere can land the Fitzdares Royal Windsor Racecourse Maiden Hurdle. This will be her debut for Henderson, but she does bring Grade Three-placed form to the table from France. She might just be useful.
