TORNADO CAN STORM HOME AT CHEPSTOW

By Adam Morgan, PA

Rebecca Curtis made a return to the big time at the Cheltenham Festival on Tuesday and can now make a mark on her home patch when the consistent Newton Tornado heads to Chepstow. A winner of his only point-to-point at Ballindenisk last May, he was soon picked up by Curtis and made an encouraging bow at this venue in November. He then bumped into the useful Moon Rocket, who has shown up in graded company since, while Ben Pauling's Diva Luna is another of real calibre to deny Newton Tornado in his early appearances. Some would find it disappointing he could not break his maiden under rules when sent off 1-2 favourite at Uttoxeter last month, but again there was little to fault with the six-year-old's efforts, with another performance to suggest a win is just around the corner. It was the much-experienced Saint Palais who took home the spoils that day but with a first run under three miles banked, there is every chance Newton Tornado could now finally register the victory his opening runs deserve in the Capital Windscreens Supports Prostate Cancer Charity Maiden Hurdle. There could also be celebrations for the local connections of Blue Las, who drops back down in class having not been disgraced when third in a Sandown Grade Two last month. Owned by Welshman Dai Walters, the Neil Mulholland-trained mare had previously impressed when winning at a canter at Ffos Las and now moves into handicap company off a mark of 121. That could underestimate the seven-year-old's potential and there will be no surprises if she proves a cut above her rivals in the Capital Windscreens Supports Muscular Dystrophy Charity Mares' Handicap Hurdle. Paul Nicholls could get punters off to a winning start with Jena d'Oudairies in the Capital Windscreens Supports Breast Cancer Charity Mares' Maiden Hurdle. Although well held at Kempton most recently, her form before that had been highly respectable and last April's Taunton bumper victor could make a welcome return to winning ways stepping up in trip. There could also be an exciting prospect in the concluding Terry's Birthday Open National Hunt Flat Race, where Olly Murphy's Karonacho is rated the one to beat. He was an extremely encouraging second to a smart performer at Uttoxeter on his racecourse bow in the autumn and only needs to have naturally progressed over a winter break to get off the mark here. There is another interesting youngster in the bumper at Market Rasen, where Shabalko d'Herm makes his debut for the Nigel Twiston-Davies team. A commanding winner when sent off favourite in a Toomebridge point-to-point in October, he has since changed hands for #140,000 and can make an equally impressive transition to racing under rules against exposed rivals in the Visit racingtv.com Open Maiden National Hunt Flat Race. Elsewhere on the card, Ballywood brings smart course form to the table for Georgie Howell and appeals dropping back in distance off an ever-decreasing mark in the Bet At racingtv.com Handicap Chase. Venetia Williams' consistent Lagonda also represents a betting proposition in the Get Daily Tips At racingtv.com Mares' Handicap Chase having not finished outside of the front three in her last five outings.
